

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A golf club head is characterized by stepped grooves in the striking face thereof. The serrated grooves are defined by opposed side walls each having at least one step portion intermediate the length thereof. The stepped grooves impart more 5 consistent spin to a golf ball when struck by the club head.